

What We Do: We serve mid-sized multi-family residential property management companies based in the US who want to grow their portfolio through a strategy of centralization across people, processes and technology.
Truths about us - High integrity – we serve the best interests of our clients, even when it’s against our own - Think people before technology - Make complex change feel easy - Offer deep experience in people-focused technology adoption and business-led transformation		The truth about the market/industry See "H:\Shared drives\OW Partnership\One Wall Resources\Headwinds_and_Hard_Truths_About_Our_Audience.md"	Truth about the people we want to serve "H:\Shared drives\OW Partnership\One Wall Resources\Headwinds_and_Hard_Truths_About_Our_Audience.md"
Purpose why do we exist?	People who is this for? What do they care about?	Personal how can we change how people feel? how can we help them live better lives?	Perception what did they believe? what would we like them to believe about us?	Product what do people really want or need? how do we create value for our customers?
To create elegant solutions that marry people, processes and technology	Budget holders at multi-family residential firms in the US who manage around 3k-10k units as owner and operator or 3rd party manager or a mix of the two	- Reactive to Proactive - Chaotic to Clear - Their employees go from fearful and resistant to change to relieved and excited	What did they believe? - They believe that AI consultancies are often smart kids who haven’t worked in the real world or within their industry and don’t know their people and pain points. - Technology vendors are always trying to sell them on new features they don’t need as opposed to fixing their real and present challenges - Consultants and agencies operate like parasites, offering cheap up-front costs for the back-end hosting and maintenance fees. What we’d like them to believe about us - Understand the unique challenges of the industry and how to land change within it - That they can trust our solutions and our commitment to their best interests - Being sticky is icky to us – we believe in delivering solutions our clients are well positioned to afford and maintain – as opposed to building things you need us to sustain	- People just want the gains of technology without all the complexity and pain - We take a lot of that pain away through how our proprietary tools and exercises are designed and with how we engage with our clients – listening closely for opportunities and pairing them with cutting edge technology and approaches.

What are the emotions we want to evoke?

Relief

- Our solutions are co-created by your people for greater buy-in and fit-for-purpose outcomes.
- Imagine what your business would look like if everyone got to focus on value creation.

Amazement

- Those were such great questions.
- That was so easy!
- This works even better than I imagined

Clear, calm and organized

- A clear blueprint for less administration through centralized services that segment work according to who is best placed to provide it.
- More time for relationships with your residents and the work you truly enjoy

Our initial offer

- A 30-min discovery session to understand your goals and how what we do can support them
- To build trust and confidence in our capability, we offer a free process diagnostic for one critical business process
- At zero risk to you, you’ll receive a list of quick fixes and strategic changes that address your pain points, as well as an explanation for how we’d recommend you approach them, which you can then take and execute yourself if you wish.
- Following this discovery period, if we believe we’re a match for one another, we offer medium to long-term partnership agreements focused on the achievement of growth and efficiency targets fuelled by a clear strategy for centralization.

What’s the story?

- We’ve spent the past 2 years embedded within OneWall Communities’ teams across HR, Finance and Operations working alongside them and their technology partner Venn City.
- We signed a 1-year retainer contract in Nov 2025 and in November we will offer new capacity to take new offerings and everything we’ve learned to new accounts.
- We’re excited for what’s to come. Let’s talk about how we can help support your plans.

What do we offer post-discovery?

- A step-by-step framework for centralization strategy formation
- Diagnosis of the critical pain points in your critical processes and a vendor-agnostic roadmap to resolve them
- Fast, professional design, development and handover of custom AI & Automation tools that fit real gaps in your processes
- We make the capture of your requirements and process detail fun and easy using our SCOUT series of proprietary tools.
- We can deploy our solutions to your acquisition targets to assess their fit and integration complexity.
- Part of our SCOUT series of applications is an exercise that captures information about an participant’s specific workflows and pain points to design a personalized strategy for the integration of AI & automation into day-to-day work.
